Provincial Scout Jamboree 1930

JULY 5TH TO 12TH

—AT—

WASKESIU LAKE PRINCE ALBERT NATIONAL PARK

Objects and Aims of The Jamboree

1. To stimulate energy among troops and encourage them to do missionary work for Scouting.
2. To make Scouting better understood by the public.
3. To recruit Scout leaders and workers.
4. To bring lonely troops and patrols and leaders into closer touch with one another.
5. To push Scouting forward into every town, village and rural school.

Such were the ideals in mind when the Provincial Council of the Boy Scouts Association decided to hold the great Jamboree in the province. Scouting for the last few years has been going forward by leaps and bounds and was given a great impetus by the fact that so many boys from Saskatchewan made the long journey to Birkenhead, England, last year to represent the province in the World Jamboree held there in August, 1929. Of course, nothing nearly so elaborate as that was contemplated, but the hope has been expressed that with the experience gained this year in a Provincial Jamboree, when the great International Grain Exhibition is held in a year or so's time in this province, a Jamboree of international scope may also be held.

However, it is a great gratification to the Provincial Council to find as a result of this effort that Scouts are coming from all over the province. The list of troops on another page of this booklet will show how widespread is the interest in such a get-together that 500 boys will make the trip, many of them by road, journeying from every corner of this province to spend a week under canvas in Saskatchewan's National Park.

The Park itself will be an eye-opener to a great many and deserves a page to itself. There are in this province many beautiful camping places and no doubt our Scouts have already discovered them and experienced their joys in past summers, but for such a unique gathering as the first Provincial Jamboree no better choice than Saskatchewan's own Park could have been made.

The leaders for this Province-wide Scout Camp were chosen with especial care, having regard to the greatness of the undertaking. Gilwell camp training is the best word in efficiency in such affairs and men who have had such training and have proved in practical summer camps their ability to carry out the ideals of Gilwell, were asked to organize the Jamboree.

THE WORLD JAMBOREE

JULY-AUGUST, 1929

The fifty thousand Scouts who assembled from all corners of the earth, into one monster camp at Arrowe Park in England, have, since that event been ambassadors of good-will and international understanding. The feelings of friendship that were born in that camp have found expression in other Scout gatherings in widely separated places. Here is another baby brother of the Great Jamboree: Saskatchewan's Own Provincial Camp at the National Park, and here again are renewed the jolly times and experiences of the World Camp.

CAMPCRAFT

Never build a camp fire against a tree or log in leaf mould or in rotten wood. Build all fires away from overhanging branches and on a dirt or rock formation. Scrape away all inflammable material within a radius of three feet. When you break camp be dead sure the fire is out—really out.

An axe is an excellent tool in the hands of the right chap. Any fellow destroying, defacing or hacking a living tree wantonly is no Scout.

Washing up is always a nuisance. Get it done right away or it may weigh on your conscience, or serve as an invitation to all the flies in the Park.

Did you return that jack-knife you borrowed for five minutes yesterday?

If you want to see wild life in the woods, be quiet and move softly. Birds and animals see, hear and smell much better than you do and they spot you first. That's why so many say they saw nothing in the Park.

Slacken the guy-ropes before the rain comes. Don't wait for the pegs to be pulled out of the ground.

PRINCE ALBERT NATIONAL PARK

Fifty miles to the North of Prince Albert, beyond the Saskatchewan River, the great rolling plains of the West give place to a very different type of country. There the traveler comes into a region of rocks, woods and waters which seem almost to have been designed by Nature as a sports playground for the people of inland Canada. The land here is everywhere broken by the waters of a countless lakes. The woods of heaven lay over great masses of forest water dotted with tree-covered islands and edged with glorious sand and pebble beaches. In every lake you can find as with a thread of silver are little rivers and streams, swelling their old-time waves toward the broad, calm, rising to our feet as we enter the Hudson Bay. The forest trees are here even at their best. The white birch, the jack pine and the white spruce grow in the soft soil and find and grow to tremendous size. Each stands in its own place where a certain beast find a true sanctuary. It is a realm not of red and gold, but of green and gold places for those who are more interested in seeing wild life than in displaying it. Here it anywhere.

"There is Beauty yet to find
And Certainty and Quiet kind."

Here, too, you can get that free life in the open which more and more people seem to hunger for. It is a great place for a man. For Scout's it is a Paradise.
